History

On March 20th, 2012, the United Nations proclaimed the International Day of Happiness. The intention is to create a happier and more fulfilled world. The International Day of Happiness was inspired by Bhutan, a country whose citizens are considered to be some of the happiest in the world. Bhutan recognized the power of national happiness over national income and went so far as to adopt the goal of Gross National Happiness over Gross National Product.

Event Overview

Happy Fun Fest is a local project, designed to spread the global idea of happiness by beginning at the community level. The goal of the Fun Fest is to celebrate community and cultural diversity through a family oriented and social atmosphere. The theme for the inaugural event is "The Pursuit of Happiness...Reaching Beyond You," which promotes creativity in people of all ages, and encourages the cooperation among participating groups and communities.
